Good afternoon Danielle,

Thank you for your ongoing engagement leading up to the Economic Reform Roundtable. We are looking forward to welcoming you to Australian Parliament House this week.

To support your participation, we are pleased to provide the following materials ahead of the event. Please find attached to this email:

- Annotated agenda – intended to provide context for the structure of sessions as well as a non-prescriptive guide on where commonly raised issues could be discussed.
- Thematic synthesis of submissions – intended to provide insight into commonly proposed ideas and themes from the public consultation process.

Printed versions of these documents will be available to you at the Roundtable for your convenience.

Once again, we thank you for your ongoing engagement. If you have any further questions or queries, please don't hesitate to contact s 47F [redacted] or this inbox if you have any further questions or queries.

Kind regards,

Economic Reform Roundtable

Economic Reform Roundtable

Summary of themes from public consultation

A public consultation process for the Economic Reform Roundtable was open from Friday 27 June to Friday 25 July 2025.

Nearly 900 submissions were received from individuals, businesses, industry groups and civil society groups. This document has been prepared by Treasury to summarise the themes and ideas that were raised in these submissions. This analysis does not reflect any order of priority, views of the government, or potential discussions that may arise during the Economic Reform Roundtable.
