Medicare has been the backbone of health provision for over 40 years.

It has enabled disadvantaged children, their parents and all Australians access to essential health services, including safe childbirth.

Without Medicare, I, as a doctor would not have been able to start and maintain my GP practice in a rural area.

David Miller