

Dear Productivity Commission,

Currently an engineer, working in FMCG industry.

Several people and organisations I know are suppliers or workers within the auto industry. Their livelihood depends on its existence, as well as their passion and satisfaction in such employment.

Regression in that not being involved in such a globalised and continually advancing industry. With it comes technology, education, best practices that filter through to adjunct industries.

The auto industry is symbolic to Australia. We have a capability to be proud of, something that can be developed, reinforcing our industrial prowess and in turn instilling national pride.

Kind Regards,
Earl Healey
