

Dear Productivity Commission,

Hi I'm a grazier,

Shutting down the local car industry would destroy this nation, apart from the strategic importance in having capability to produce manufactured goods/vehicles here, espicially important in time of war, so we can defend ourselves, when the dollar drops to 70cents US imported cars of 20K will be near 40k and local cars will be cheaper, all the dollar valuation is artificial but destruction of local manufacturing is real, and so are it's consequences!

As above

Live in the bush, real Australia, latte imports just don't cut it here! They don't survive, I expect 400,000klms out of my cars, aussie ones do that, whereas imports are lucky to last 100,000klms

Kind Regards,
Brett Griffiths
