

To whom it may concern

I have read many of the 330 submissions. I don't have much to add except that artists, illustrators, authors need to be valued and nurtured. Any time financial manipulation overpowers artistic expression the world for me becomes a poorer place.

I can't comment politically because your world isn't my landscape. My landscape is made of paint, paper and print. All I can suggest is that you look after and nourish the creative culture that helps to define you.
