My submission to the Productivity Commission is as follows:

People with depression who cannot cope are victimized by public servants who say the person must do as they say. But the person requests (his rights) something from say councils. They are ignored because they cannot retaliate.

Examples. A person attends court for failing to carry out certain duties, with letters from his medical practitioner stating they suffer hypertension. The magistrate looked at this person and said you don't look sick to me. Guilty!

This person wrote to Michael Wooldridge, Health Minister at the time on this case. The receipt of this letter was never acknowledged.

A lady suffering schizophrenia complained to police 3 or 4 times she had been raped (I fully understand the problem for the police because they are not trained in this field to recognise Truth from Delusion). Her persistence on the last rape resulted in it being proved
